BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF DUTIES: The Flight Safety Officer serves as the primary technical advisor to the Wing Commander and the Chief of Safety on all matters pertaining to aviation mishap prevention and operational risk management. Their core mission is to preserve combat capability by managing the wing's Aviation Safety Program, which includes the Bird/Wildlife Aircraft Strike Hazard (BASH) and the Hazardous Air Traffic Report (HATR) initiatives. As a central figure in mishap response, the FSO directs or participates in Safety Investigation Boards (SIBs) for incidents ranging from Class A to E, ensuring that investigative privilege is maintained while identifying root causes to prevent future occurrences and preserve the wing's fleet.

In addition to investigation and oversight, the FSO actively shapes the unit's safety culture through recurring inspections of airfield facilities, maintenance hangars, and flight line operations to ensure strict compliance with DAFI 91-202. Utilizing the Air Force Safety Automated System (AFSAS), they translate complex flight data into actionable intelligence for leadership, highlighting trends and emerging hazards. As a rated officer, they bridge the gap between policy and execution by developing mission-specific risk mitigation strategies and delivering critical safety briefings to aircrew and maintenance personnel, ensuring the wing remains ready for high-tempo operations while minimizing avoidable personnel and equipment losses.
